

THE CHICAGO WAY.

There are a good many queer things to be observed in Chicago.

One of the quainter here gives a list of the names of the happy persons to whom marriage licenses are issued every morning. In yesterday's list I find that the following are soon to enjoy wedded bliss: Macy Burzinski and Helen Ptochowska, Frank Walka and Laura Glowcsewska, and Joseph Rozmarek and Josefina Kosielska.

This is truly an American city.

It always seemed peculiar to me that Jay Gould didn't live in Chicago.

One of the wealthiest men in Chicago told me yesterday how he got his start in the world. It is a story that he is fond of telling in the clubs, in the ballrooms and wherever he can. He is proud of it.

"I worked two years on a farm for nothing," he said. "The third year, by the use of influence, I got the job of cleaning up the schoolhouse and making fires. I had to get up long before the crack of dawn, feed the horses on the farm, bring in water, get firewood in the kitchen and get over to the schoolhouse before any one got there. Cold? Well, a man's determination has got to do with that. I got along all right. Sometimes the thermometer had dropped out of sight of zero, but I didn't mind. I kept my job two years."

"Then I came to Chicago and got a job with a wholesale firm, which paid me $5 a month. I had to get down at 3 o'clock in the morning and I never left before 10 at night. I never let anybody else do my work. I owned the establishment in fourteen years. We now have branches all over this country and one in Canada."

"Getting rich is the easiest thing in the world. It's lots easier than winning fame or reputation. It's just a question of work and saving. I had seven brothers and they were born. They didn't hustle and economize. It's astonishing how fast a fortune will accumulate when it's engineered right. It gathers like a snowball—the bigger it gets the more it accumulates."

"The history and experience of nine-tenths of the rich men of Chicago are the same as mine. This is a city of self-made men."

And this pluck, this fortitude to stand against hardships, to endure, the boldness to risk, the energy to develop—this is the spirit that has made Chicago.

Milwaukee was a city before Chicago was thought of.

"Why couldn't it have been Milwaukee instead of Chicago?" I asked the Chicagoan. "There's practically no difference as to location."

"It didn't have the men," he answered, frankly.

Men have made Chicago, the very men who have risked and wrought, venturing and making fortunes in a week, staking all on a deal in real estate or a chance in the grain market.

Chicago is democratic. There's a great show of wealth here, but the millionaire is closer to the workingman than the rich men of other cities are. Fortunes are built here in a day and the rich man of today was the workman of yesterday.

To my mind the most remarkable man in Chicago is H. H. Kohlsta, the man deserving of most credit and admiration. He is worth near $2,000,000 today and owns two of the most powerful papers in this city. Ten years ago he was poor. He was the enterprising owner of two or three Chicago bakeries. He applied those methods to the conduct of the bakery business that have made him so wonderfully successful in larger lines of activity, and under his guidance the bakery business thrived as it never thrived before. He made innovations and did everything legitimate to catch trade.

His audacity and pluck brought him amazing success. When it was announced that he had bought a controlling interest in the Inter Ocean there was a broad smile. It sounded as if it might be a joke. But Kohlsta soon taught the public better. He sold his stock in the Inter Ocean and two months ago succeeded to the interest of James W. Scott in the Times-Herald and The Evening Post. He is a man of fine courage, great force, strong originality and the impress of his newspaper genius is already manifest in the Times-Herald. There's no predicting the extent of the achievements of such a man.

Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor is the bell sheep of the four hundred here. He entertained royally during the world's fair and has received distinguished recognition abroad. He has also done something in a literary way. His just published novel, "Two Women and a Fool," elegantly finished from the press of the swell publishing firm of Stone & Kimball, is being talked of a great deal.

But Taylor would never be picked out of a crowd as a social leader of international distinction. He is an extremely quiet and unpretentious fellow. He is tall and broad, of athletic build, has a florid complexion, a face of the Richard Mansfield type and blue eyes. He dresses without ostentation and wears a straw hat with a flat crown, a wide brim and a high band.

I saw Taylor at a fashionable summer resort north of here this week and his mission there furnishes a rather sentimental story.

He was there with his wife to celebrate the anniversary of his marriage proposal. The proposal was made on the banks of a beautiful little fresh water lake and under the spreading trees.

"Just beyond the bridge there," said Taylor, "there, where you see that electric light. It was six years ago this week. The electric light wasn't there then."

Mrs. Taylor was Miss Farwell, daughter of Senator Farwell, of Illinois, then, as now, a brilliant and beautiful woman. She was summoned to the resort. Taylor went up from Chicago to see her. There, where the electric light is, but was not, he brought her to the point. So they were married.

Every year since, just on the anniversary of the great event of Taylor's proposal and Miss Farwell's acceptance, they have returned to that spot and celebrated. This week brought the sixth anniversary. They seemed to enjoy it. They made love over again on the rustic seats, tossed pebbles into the lake, looked forward to the future and assured each other that they had been infinitely happier for the year they had spent together.

Then they went out to row. Taylor took off his coat and rolled up his sleeves in good sailor fashion; then, with a few long strokes, he shot the boat out into the center of the lovely blue sheet. Then, with steady stroke, he pulled up the lake, until, when far from shore and crowd, he drew in his oars and, turning toward his fair companion, he let the boat drift and drift. I am sorry Frank Stanton was not there.

RESTED VERY WELL

Governor Atkinson Continues To Grow Stronger Every Hour.

HE HAD A COMFORTABLE DAY OF IT

Mrs. Atkinson Was Allowed To Spend the Afternoon with Him. Took Considerable Nourishment.

Governor Atkinson keeps on improving and gaining strength and is surely on the road to recovery now unless some unexpected development in the case brings a setback.

He rested well all yesterday. Early in the morning he awoke and was hungry for his breakfast, which consisted of a slight stimulant, a soup and a wafer. He took chicken soup and other light articles of nourishment all during the day at regular intervals and slept now and then soundly.

At a late hour last night he was still resting well, and to use a term known well to the trained nurses of the sanitarium, "was put to bed" in good condition.

The governor talks freely when allowed to do so by the attending nurses and physicians and comments upon various little incidents of the sick room.

Of course, he has not yet reached the point of receiving any callers in his sick room, and no one was with him all yesterday except the nurses and Mrs. Atkinson, who visited him in the afternoon and spent several hours by his side.

There were, of course, a vast number of callers at the office of the sanitarium to ask how the governor's condition was during the day, and they were all gratified to learn that the patient was doing so well. Yesterday was the first day that even Mrs. Atkinson could spend any considerable length of time in the presence of the patient, owing to his exceeding weakness and nervous condition.

None of the children have been allowed in the room except when Mrs. Atkinson carried the youngest one in her arms before the governor.

Dr. Holmes said to The Constitution last night that the governor had passed a very comfortable day, indeed, and was growing stronger every minute. He said unless something very much unexpected turned up the patient would certainly make good progress toward recovery within the next few days, having reached that point where he could take solid food.

This cannot reasonably mean, however, that the governor will be able to leave his room for several weeks. He will not probably be on the streets for nearly a month.

At nearly all the churches yesterday fervent prayers for his speedy recovery were offered and grateful thanks that he has been spared throughout the terrible ordeal under which he has labored so bravely during the past week.

HE IS QUITE SANGUINE.

Major Slaton, Superintendent of the Public Schools, Talks.

Superintendent Slaton leaves the city this evening for Cumberland Island.

He will go at the head of a large delegation of teachers—perhaps the largest delegation that has ever attended a session of the state convention.

He is not able to give the number of teachers who will attend the state convention this year," said the superintendent, "but you can safely put it down as the largest delegation that has ever left Atlanta. I have received quite a number of letters and several teachers have been to me in person for information in regard to the trip. The rates to Brunswick are cheap and the hotel accommodations on the island are unsurpassed. This auditorium in which the sessions of the convention will be held has a large seating capacity and is conveniently situated with reference to the hotel and the surf. It was erected by the teachers of Georgia two or three years ago and has been used by them for convention purposes. It is a commodious and handsome structure and presents quite a picturesque appearance. I hope all the teachers who can possibly attend the convention will make it a point to do so this year. They must be at the depot tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock promptly."

"Do you expect to do anything for the exposition?" the question was asked. "Of course," replied the superintendent. "Georgia's educational exhibit will be one of the chief topics of discussion and every teacher will be called upon to work for the exposition, and especially the state exhibit. The people of Georgia ought to know of the progress that has been made along educational lines and every district in the state should be represented at the exposition."

Referring to the well-known educators who will deliver addresses during the convention the superintendent mentioned the names of Dr. J. L. M. Curry, Chancellor Boggs, Dr. Warren A. Chandler, Dr. J. B. Gambrell, Hon. Fleming G. duSagon and quite a number of other distinguished Georgians. The convention will be in session for several days.

Great Tent Meeting.

Yesterday afternoon at Dr. Blosser's tent a great crowd of men listened to his sermon to men only. Dr. Blosser took up his subject of manhood and handled it with gloves off. At the close of the service the majority of those present gave their hands to the preacher endorsing what he had said.

Last night the immense tent was crowded. Many were compelled to stand.

The meetings will continue through the coming week. Services at 9 a. m. and 7:45 p. m.

An Unusually Low Rate.

In another column of this paper the Southern railway announces unusually low rates to Baltimore and return for July 15th and 17th. The Southern will on these dates sell round trip tickets from Atlanta to Baltimore for $2. The tickets will be good to return until August 5th, and this gives a good opportunity for a cheap trip to eastern cities. The round trip rate from Baltimore is $8, making the trip from Atlanta to New York and return cost only $10. There are many people who go east in July and the Southern railway will doubtless take a great many people north at this very cheap rate.

WITH THE RAILWAYS

The Atlanta and Florida Passes Under Control of the Southern.

JUDGE BAILEY THOMAS IN CHARGE

Later Developments Concerning the New Depot—Other News and Gossip of the Railroads.

The Atlanta and Florida railroad has already passed into the hands of the Southern under the terms of the deed made to the Southern by the commissioners of sale last Friday as published in The Constitution.

A formal circular effective June 23d has been issued, by which the Southern assumes control of the Atlanta and Florida and Mr. W. Bailey Thomas is in charge as district superintendent.

Following is the text of the circular:

"The Atlanta and Florida railway, from Atlanta to Fort Valley, Ga., having been acquired by this company, Mr. William Bailey Thomas is hereby appointed superintendent in charge of the transportation and roadway departments of that line. His duties in the transportation and roadway departments will be under the direction of the general superintendent and the chief engineer, respectively, and he will report as they direct. Effective June 23d."

It is seen from this circular that the Atlanta and Florida comes under the management of the Southern quite as absolutely as any of the branch lines of the system that center here.

It will be directly in touch with the management of the entire system and the road will become one of the strong lines that enter Atlanta. The Atlanta and Florida has always labored under serious difficulties in that it had no advantages in the way of terminals in this city. The road when first built had to bring its trains no further than the western borders of the city, a mile and a half out of town. About a year ago the management had the foresight to build a branch line to the city, and the trains could be handled into and out of the old East Tennessee passenger depot on Mitchell street. It is said that the road will hereafter have all the benefits of the other lines of the Southern and will bring its trains into the union passenger depot.

The Land Has Been Deeded.

Last Saturday the land that has been purchased by Mr. Atkinson for the Southern railway out near the Mitchell street crossing for the purpose of a new depot was formally deeded to the Southern by Mr. Atkinson.

The land was turned over in two bulks—the first being the lot of 119 feet east of Elliott street along the south side of Mitchell to the right of way of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, which cost $20,000, and the second being the lot between Elliott and West Mitchell, for which Mr. Atkinson had paid $47,000.

These deeds were in accordance with the plans of Mr. Atkinson and Mr. Spencer in starting the movement for a new union passenger depot, which were told in The Constitution prior to the time the deeds were made by Mr. Atkinson to the Southern.

Mr. Atkinson has been acting for Mr. Spencer all the while and had kept the secret well until The Constitution published it last Saturday.

It was a big deal, and the outcome will mean more for Atlanta in the final ending than anything that could have been done just at this time.

Plans of the Depot Drawn.

Plans for the new depot are being drawn now and will in the near future be submitted to the city council of Atlanta and to the other railroads that enter the city in the hope that the work may not be longer delayed and that the new union passenger depot may begin to go right up.

Mr. W. H. Baldwin, third vice president of the Southern, was expected in the city yesterday, but failed to arrive. He is now in Washington and will probably be in Atlanta the first of this week to look further into the arrangements for the work on the new depot to begin.

As soon as the city council grants its approval of the plans and had used its course as to changing the project of building a bridge across Alabama street into some sort of bridgeway at Mitchell street crossing, and as soon as the Southern hears from the other roads that enter the city, the work on the new depot will be taken up and the scheme will be pushed forward to a speedy and satisfactory completion. It is a certainty that the new passenger depot will be decidedly the handsomest in the entire south, and one of the most conveniently arranged in the United States.

The Seaboard's Headquarters.

It has been determined by the Seaboard Air-Line to take its general offices from Atlanta to Portsmouth.

One of the most unique railroad folders ever issued is that which the passenger department of the Southern has just taken from the press illustrating the superior advantages of Atlanta and setting forth the claims of the Cotton States and International exposition. The special purpose of the folder, of course, is to set forth the just claims of the Southern as a great route from all parts of the republic to the exposition.

The folder is printed in seven or eight different languages, there being a page set apart to announce to each of these various peoples of the world the scope of the exposition and the greatness of Atlanta.

On each of these pages the heading is the same—"Great is Atlanta," and this is the way it looks in the different languages: "Atlanta is Superbe," "Atlanta es Grande," "Atlanta es Atlantica," "Welche ist Atlanta," "Stor ar Atlanta," "Stor er Atlanta," "Slavna je Atlanta."

It is said that Mr. Sam Hardwick, assistant general passenger agent, who is a linguist of brilliant parts, did most of the composition, whether in the ancient, modern, foreign or home-made tongues.

It is a very attractive piece of railroad literature and will do more than many of the countless circulars towards scattering to the world the attractions of Atlanta and the exposition.

WILL MEET IN MACON.

The Chiefs of Police, Sheriffs and Marshals of the State Meet in July.

The chiefs of police, sheriffs and marshals of the state will meet in Macon on the 10th of July, and there will be many business matters to claim the attention of the meeting.

The union is one of the strongest organizations of the state and is in a most prosperous condition. The meeting was to have been held on the 10th of the month, but was changed to the 10th by Chief Connelly, who is now president of the union.

At the Macon meeting active steps will be taken toward more fully perfecting the organization, and several papers will be read. An interesting programme will be presented and the stay in that city will be thoroughly enjoyable.

Chief Connelly will agitate exposition matters and will see what can be done to bring members of the union to the big show this fall. He will endeavor to have them present in a body.

WHO WILL IT BE?

The Next President of the State School of Technology.

MEMBERS OF COMMISSION TACITURN

Three Names Have Been Suggested—The Board Meets Tuesday—The Exercises of Graduation.

The question of a successor to Dr. Hopkins, as president of the Technological school, has narrowed down to a choice between three men.

Two of these are members of the faculty, Professor Lyman Hall and Professor Charles Lane.

Dr. G. A. Nunnally, ex-president of Mercer university, is the last entry. None of these gentlemen have avowed themselves in the race, but each is strongly urged by his friends and is backed by an influential following.

The commission holds a meeting next Tuesday morning for the purpose of electing a successor to Dr. Hopkins.

Questioned in regard to the matter the members of the board refused to speak or to intimate in any way the result of their deliberations.

The local members are Messrs. S. M. Inman, George Winship and W. B. Miles. The out-of-town members are Messrs. N. E. Harris, of Macon; E. R. Hodgson, of Athens; Columbus Heard, of Greensboro, and O. S. Porter, of Columbia.

Professor Hall Indorsed.

The following letter has been received from Professor John P. Thomas, ex-superintendent of the South Carolina military academy:

"Columbia, S. C., June 21.—Editor Constitution: In your issue of June 19th, I notice the movement of the students and the alumni of the Georgia School of Technology in behalf of Professor Lyman Hall for the presidency of that institution."

"Allow me to give my testimony. When I was superintendent of the South Carolina Military academy—1882-85—Professor Hall served under me as assistant professor of the academy and the rank of captain. He was in all respects an acceptable officer and his West Point training was conspicuous, both in the classroom and on the drill ground."

"A man of high character and one possessing fine attainments as well as executive ability and disciplinary skill, Professor Lyman Hall is eminently fitted for the presidency of the school. He has my indorsement as belonging to that rare type of men in whom we may place an absolute trust."

JOHN P. THOMAS, Ex-Superintendent South Carolina Military Academy.

The students are making a strong fight to secure the promotion of one of the members of the faculty and they want either Professor Hall or Professor Lane.

A committee of students will likely go before the board next Tuesday.

Commencement Week.

The graduating exercises of the school occur next Wednesday morning.

Dr. Hopkins will deliver the baccalaureate address to the members of the graduating class and Chancellor Boggs will deliver the diplomas. Each member of the class has prepared a thesis to be read on commencement day.

The preparation of a thesis is regarded as a prerequisite to graduation. All of them, however, will not be read. On Tuesday the exercises of the literary societies will occur. The chapel will no doubt be crowded with the friends of the institution during the week.

THE TEACHERS ON CUMBERLAND.

They Will Go by the Plant System. One Fare for Round Trip.

A large party of teachers and friends from Atlanta and adjoining towns will leave Atlanta at 7 o'clock tonight in special sleeper by the Central railway and Plant system for their annual convention on Cumberland Island.

The Plant system has made a very low rate of one fare for the round trip to Brunswick, and a large crowd is expected to go by this popular route. The steamer has also granted a rate of $1.25 from Brunswick to the island and return. This rate is open to all. Don't miss the trip as it will be the most enjoyable of the season.

Special sleepers have been provided so that all may be comfortably located. For tickets, sleeper reservations or any information, apply to Central railroad ticket office, or union depot, Phone 149.

A LONG RUN.

Policeman Harris Captures Two Thieves and a Lot of Clothing.

Policeman J. B. Harris made a long but successful run after two negro boy sneak thieves Saturday morning in the western part of the city. He captured both and lodged them in the station house.

When arrested the boys had in their possession two coats, one pair of pants, one pair of shoes, and one rubber coat, all of which were stolen from a boarding house on Walton street Friday morning. The names of the boys are Will Amie and Thomas Jones, both very young negroes. They will be given an examination on the charge against them today.

STILL AT IT.

J. J. Patterson Arrested for Beating His Wife Again.

J. J. Patterson, the man who, it will be remembered, came near killing his wife several years ago by cutting her throat at Grant park, was arrested early Sunday morning for beating her at her home in the western part of the city.

Patterson has served a term in the penitentiary on account of assaulting the woman, but he cannot be persuaded to keep away from her. He was arrested about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning by Officer Sigmond and sent to police headquarters.

ABOUT ATLANTA.

The News and Banner: Atlanta is frequently spoken of in the west as the Chicago of the South. Atlanta is a hustler. Few cities north, south, east or west can equal the Gate City in point of enterprising thriftiness.

Madison Advertiser: Atlanta wants the national democratic convention. And Atlanta usually gets all she wants.

COL. CHAPMAN GOES

He Has Been Transferred to St. Louis, Missouri.

REVENUE AGENT PITTS SUCCEEDS HIM

The New Agent Will Arrive in About Ten Days—The Last of the Chapman Trammell Fight.

Colonel W. H. Chapman, the revenue agent, has received orders from Washington city, transferring him to St. Louis, Mo. It will take him about two weeks to wind up the business of the office and put everything in shape for his successor.

Revenue Agent W. L. Pitts, of Roanoke, Va., has been designated as Colonel Chapman's successor. As soon as he can leave Roanoke he will take charge of the office in this city.

Colonel Chapman's transfer to Missouri is in the nature of a promotion. He will have entire supervision of the states of Minnesota, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Kansas.

At present he has charge of only three states—Georgia, Alabama and Florida. Colonel Chapman is sent to Missouri to relieve Revenue Agent T. B. Carson, who takes the place of Revenue Agent Pitts, at Roanoke, Va.

The friends of Colonel Chapman in Atlanta will regret very much to see him leave. He came to this city over ten years ago and has been in the revenue service ever since that time. He has made one of the best revenue agents in the service and his friends are not restricted to any one party. He has been in the government's employ for more than twenty-two years and has held his position in Atlanta longer than any revenue officer in the country.

Colonel Chapman Talks.

"I regret to leave Atlanta," said Colonel Chapman, "but I have received instructions from the commissioner and I have no choice in the matter. I took charge of this office in 1885 and have occupied it continuously ever since that time. It has grown very much during my incumbency and the duties of the office are now quite burdensome. I came to Atlanta with the intention of making this my home and after living here for ten years I feel very closely drawn toward the people of this city. It will take me several days to wind up the affairs of the office, but as soon as I can get things in shape I will leave for St. Louis. I have the satisfaction of knowing that I have been fully sustained by the commissioner and my removal is due entirely to outside influence."

Colonel Chapman will not take his family with him for several weeks. His sons will likely remain in Atlanta and engage in business here. He has quite a talented son who is a practicing physician at Cedar-ton.

It is understood that provision will be made for Miss Mary McNaught, and also for ex-Deputy Hetherington. The officers now on duty are directed by the commissioner to report to Revenue Agent Pitts on his arrival. Colonel Chapman disclaims the interview with him in the afternoon paper and says that much of it is incorrectly stated.

CHEAP EXCURSION RATES

AVERY IN CARACAS

Venezuela Preparing Her Exhibit for the Exposition.

MANNERS AND CUSTOMS OF THE PEOPLE

Livingston To Have a Grand Reception. A Fine Hotel in Caracas—The Marrying Place.

Caracas, Venezuela, June 10.—Sitting in my pleasant room in the "Gran Hotel de Venezuela" writing you, the view is very pretty. This is the new hotel here not fully completed, but filled to its capacity. It reminds me of our Aragon, in Atlanta, and the pleasant proprietor, Senor Franco, told me he would make it the Aragon of Caracas. The Spanish minister is in it, and Senor Rolando, the president of the state of Bermudez, is also here.

This hotel would be a novelty among us. It completely surrounds a long and wide square court, running up three stories, with glass roofs over walks across on the first floor. Interior balconies clear around each story overlook the ground, while the floor is beautifully tiled and filled with tropical flowers and plants, elevated on legs a foot high, a fountain in the middle and everything picturesque and attractive.

The walls are frescoed with typical groups of tropical flowers, tropically brilliant. The entire walls of the eating room have beautifully painted Venezuelan scenes that give an appetizing flavor to the food.

The hotel fronts on the finest park in Caracas, the Plaza Bolivar, pronounced Bo-le-var, accent on the le. It is an exquisite public plaza—a pattern of beauty, finish and good keeping. The entire ground, except where the trees and flowers are growing, is beautifully tiled. The vegetation is all tropical, and as the rainy season has begun and we have a daily shower of an hour or two, the trees and grass and flowers are fresh and brilliant and the effect is aesthetically enough. There are four fountains in the plaza and in the center the finest statue I have seen in South America—an equestrian statue of General Simon Bolivar, the great South American Washington or liberator, who led and achieved the independence of these countries from Spanish dominion in the twenties.

The statue is a very fine one and represents the liberator in his uniform upon his plunging horse. In this square in the afternoon and evenings in the cool shade the people sit and chat, and a large pile of chairs is kept for their convenience that are stacked up and covered from the weather when not in use.

On Sunday and Thursday evenings from 8 to 10 o'clock the government band discourses exquisite music and the plaza and streets are thronged with people.

But this beautiful hotel and plaza have some drawbacks. The newshoers are the most vociferous and irrepressible that I have ever heard or seen. They are mostly little colored fellows with a vigor of lung and a screeching voice that never tires or holds up, and this plaza is their grand gathering place. From morning until late at night they ply their noisy vying of papers in their shrill Spanish jargon, unintelligible to the American ear.

Another curious custom that one from our country finds it difficult to get used to is the use made of the church bells on Sundays and the many feast days. Instead of our soft, regular ringing, it seems to be an old practice and universal here to keep up at regular short intervals a rapid "tom-tom" beating of the bells that sounds queerly to the hearing unaccustomed to it.

The Marrying Custom.

An interesting and novel place to the American is the ceremony of marriage. On the corner of the Plaza Bolivar is a handsome large hall, finely furnished and with oil paintings of distinguished men. Brilliantly lighted and with flowers and plants tastefully arranged, it is a very charming room. Here all the marriages of Caracas take place. Regular evenings by the civil authorities, and the rich and the poor, the elegant and the noble like to take their turn in receiving the civil ordinance that unites them in wedlock. It is as democratic a practice as can be conceived. The evenings for this promiscuous marital tying up are Saturday and Wednesday. Last time an elegant concourse of fashionably dressed people came. There were a dozen fine carriages filled with the best people. The scene was poetic enough. Next a couple of the laboring folks in their simple attire and uncouth ways arrived. This is the law. The civil marriage is required, but sometimes parties add to the civil ceremony the church wedding.

The United States Legation.

The American legation is very tastefully fixed. The present quarters have been used for some years. The large, deep court has plants of Egyptian papyrus that present a unique appearance. They grow up with a novel sort of foliage and are capped with green sprays with seed on them. In the back part are many beautiful flowers, but the young charge de affaires, Mr. Bartleman is a connoisseur in his art and had made a large aviary in which he has fully a hundred of the tropical birds, and their varied plumage and sweet notes constitute a very poetic attraction for diplomatic environment.

President Crespo and Our Exposition.

President Crespo gave me an interview, in which Mr. Bartleman assured me and Senor Lucio Pulido, the delightful minister of foreign relations, introduced me. President Crespo told me that Venezuela would make just as good an exhibit as could be arranged in the time, and in a subsequent interview with Senor Pulido, that gentleman told me that they had written to the presidents of the states about their co-operation and had me present a plan of co-operation. A letter, written by Senor Pulido, the president of Miranda, says his state will do its part and that the president of the state of Carabobo will do the same, while Minister Andrade, the minister in Washington, writes me that the president of the state of Zulia has written him of his co-operation. The Club Agricola of Caracas and the chamber of commerce here have promised their active support. The German Railroad Company, which owns the largest road in Venezuela, from Caracas to Valencia, has assured me of its active participation, and the president of the state of Bermudez, General Nicolas Rolando, is in the city, and in an interview with him he stated that his state would do its part. This is the present condition of the exposition matter.

The governors of the states, nine in number, are called presidents, and under their system they are more subject to federal authority than in our republic.

Colonel Livingston Here.

One of the two leading papers, El Tiempo, copies from The Constitution the interview with Colonel Livingston on the Monroe doctrine with hearty commendation. I find the colonel well known here, and his action on the boundary question has made him very popular. El Tiempo reports that he will be here next Tuesday, and has the following editorial notice of him and his arrival, which I translate:

It is headed "Livingston in Venezuela." It says: "We give a notice agreeable to all those who know how to acknowledge the favor of good services to our country; to those who acquainted with the matter of our limits with Guayana, appreciate the addresses that were pronounced by distinguished foreign friends in North American congress for our independence and honor."

"We are informed that on the ship that sailed from New York on the 4th instant there will arrive in our neighboring port La Guayra—the Hon. Mr. Livingston, the representative in the congress of the United States of North America, who introduced in the house of representatives of that grand republic the resolution relative to the question of our limits with Demarara.

"As our readers know, the brilliant exposition of our rights from the lips of Mr. Livingston strengthened our cause in the public opinion of the north."

"On Tuesday of next week we can show our gratitude with a timely and earnest reception to the illustrious and distinguished gentleman, who, with other forces, led to arbitrament the controversy between England and Venezuela."

THE NEGRO MAY DIE.

Sol Thornton, Who Occupies a Cell at the Station House, Very Sick.

Sol Thornton, a negro, now confined at the police station, is a very sick man, and unless he receives the best attention, it is very probable that the man will die.

Thornton has spent the past week at the station, and his time was out yesterday. He was returned to the station, however, as there was a state case hanging over him.

As soon as he was placed in the cell it was evident that he was quite sick. He was suffering great agony at the time, and the county physician was called in. His condition showed signs of improvement and the negro rested better for awhile.

Last night he again became worse and Dr. McDaniel was telephoned for. The doctor says that the negro's condition now is not necessarily precarious, but it may become so at any hour. He thinks Thornton has been overcome by the sun while at work, and that his nervous system is completely shattered.

It is very likely that Thornton will be taken to the hospital this morning, unless he gets a great deal better.

PASSED A QUIET DAY

Myers Spends the Sabbath Talking with His Cellmates in Jail.

HAS RECOVERED FROM HIS ILLNESS

The Boy Bears Up Wonderfully Under the Great Strain of the Trial, and Shows No Signs of Weakening as Yet.

Will Myers rested well yesterday and passed the entire day without suffering.

On Saturday he was ill at the courthouse, but the physician who attended him did not regard his case as being serious. He appeared to be suffering from severe pains in the right side and was for a time so ill that the trial was stopped.

Yesterday the alarming symptoms had all disappeared and he was in his accustomed good spirits. He spent the day lounging about with the other prisoners and frequently the corridors echoed with his merry laugh.

The services of the doctor were not needed at any time, and it is probable that he has entirely recovered from his recent illness.

"Oh, I am feeling first rate," he said, smilingly, last night, "and think that I will be all right now. I was very sick for a while and I was afraid that I would be too ill to have the trial proceed. Now I am sure that nothing was very serious with me and it was simply a sudden attack, the cause of which I do not know."

Just before the trial began many thought that the wonderful nerve of the boy would desert him when the ordeal of the trial was reached and the damaging testimony against him was given. In this conclusion the public was greatly mistaken. He has displayed that same strong nerve that was so noticeable when he was first arrested and the accusation was made.

He is as bright and cheerful as he has been at any time, and the cool and deliberate self-possession has not deserted him. He has not weakened, and wears that easy, able expression that shows how thoroughly he can control himself. He speaks cheerfully of the final outcome of the trial and does not hesitate to say that the man Brown Allen will eventually be discovered.

He clings with wonderful tenacity to the theory he first advanced and claims that the slayer of Forrest Crowley will finally be apprehended and brought to the bar of justice.

I have nothing to conceal. Why certainly not, I have told all that I know and am ready to tell the same story as often as it becomes necessary. The public has already been informed as to what I know about the case and I am simply waiting for the arrest of Allen, when all will be known.

Myers possesses self-control to a marvelous extent, but no one can say just how long he will remain strong and determined. Under the fearful invectives of attorneys and the rapid fire of cross-questions, he remained perfectly cool and gave stare for stare.

This morning when the case is called Myers will be firm and resolute and he will hear the speeches without a tremor of a single muscle.

REORGANIZING STATE AGENTS. Twenty-Four of Them Will Be Dropped.

Washington, June 23.—Secretary Morton has approved an order reorganizing the force of state agents. This action is the result of the consultation arising from the conference had last spring with a committee of the national board of trade and is part of more comprehensive plans which the secretary has in view in order to enlarge the scope and efficiency of the statistical division. By the present order twenty-four state agents will be retained, their duties being increased with fourteen others into that many with but one state agent to each. Seven states only will have their own state agents. As the most efficient agents will be those retained, the secretary expects that the force will be more efficient than heretofore, and although in certain cases higher remuneration will be allowed, there will be a saving on an aggregate of about $100,000 a year. The changes referred to, proposed to abolish all state agents, but this proposal did not meet with the secretary's entire approval.

The Teachers To Travel. The Georgia Teachers' Association will begin its meeting at Cumberland on Tuesday, the first of the large delegation from this part of the state to leave Atlanta Monday night. Major R. J. Guinn, of Atlanta, is president of the association and a zealous worker for its welfare.

The teachers have decided to travel via the Southern railway to Cumberland, and a large party headed by President Guinn will leave Atlanta on the Southern railway 9:10 o'clock p. m. train Monday. Ample extra Pullman cars have been arranged for the party.

MEETINGS. Notice! The annual election for officers of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce will be held in the office of the Secretary on Monday, July 1, 1895. Polls open from 12 noon until 5 o'clock p. m.

M'CASLIN IN JAIL

He Was Placed Under Arrest Saturday
by Sheriff J. J. Barnes.

HE BOUGHT SOME FINE DIAMONDS

Which He Never Paid for and Which He Declines To Give Up—He Says His Wife Has Them.

By reason of his failure to satisfy a bail trover action to the amount of about $150 in favor of Stillson & Collins, the Whitehall street jewellers, a balance due on the purchase of $450 worth of diamonds, William J. McCaslin, the real estate and money broker, was arrested by Sheriff Barnes Saturday morning and lodged in the Fulton county jail, where he remained last night, being unsuccessful in his efforts to give bond.

McCaslin is well known in the city and at one time stood very high, socially and commercially, and his trouble will be read with surprise in many circles.

The purchase of the diamonds from Stillson & Collins which got McCaslin in the clutches of the law was made something over a year ago and, as stated, originally amounted to $450, one-half of that amount being paid in cash when the purchase was made, the balance to be paid in ninety days, the title to the goods in the meantime to remain in the name of the seller, however.

The balance of the original purchase amount still due the jewellers is about $150, McCaslin having made a payment of about $75 on the $225 credit note he gave when the diamonds were purchased.

The Papers Were Lost.

The bail trover action was taken in the city court about two weeks ago, but on account of an oversight in the courthouse offices it was not brought to the attention of Sheriff Barnes until Wednesday of last week, and then only after Stillson & Collins had made inquiry as to what had become of the papers. It is customary to serve trover papers as soon as issued, and knowing that, the jewellers set about an investigation of the matter, resulting in finding the papers in a pigeon hole in Sheriff Barnes's office. It seems that the papers got lost in the sheriff's office by reason of their not having been marked "trover" when sent to that office from the county clerk's office, as is customary.

Twenty-Four Hours' Respite.

When the sheriff's attention was called to the disappearance of the papers he at once instituted a search for them and found them among a lot of civil papers in a pigeon-hole used only at intervals. The sheriff at once went on a search for McCaslin with the determination of finding him and bringing him or the diamonds in question in the presence of the cold law, but for a time the dutiful resolve of the sheriff was lulled only to find that he found the man, but not the diamonds—neither did he take into custody the purchaser of the sparkling stones.

McCaslin, begged for twenty-four hours' time. Sheriff Barnes allowed McCaslin the desired twenty-four hours' respite, fully expecting to receive at the expiration of that time two, or rather a pair, of brilliant, dazzling diamond earrings, but his expectations turned into gross disappointment.

Diamonds nor man was within the official or private cognizance of the officer Saturday morning, and the next best thing for the sheriff to do was to go forth and look for either or both. The result was the discovery of the man in the jail, but he had not with him the dazzling diamonds.

Then followed the event already stated—McCaslin was placed under arrest and detained at the sheriff's office during the day. He was his best effort to get out of the jail to give bond in the sum of $200, the law in such cases requiring a bond in a sum double the amount in question, but in that end he met with disappointment, the result being his incarceration in the Fulton county jail Saturday night.

His Big Law Suit.

McCaslin has been before the Atlanta public in recent years in many ways, mostly in the courts.

It will be remembered that he figured before the public on account of his growing out of the purchase by him of the magnificent Peachtree street home formerly the property of Mrs. William Dickson, two or three years ago. The property was purchased by him for the sum of $25,000, of which amount he paid about $2,000, the remainder being the basis of a lawsuit on account of McCaslin's being unable to make the contract settlements with the former owners of the property. The property was held in the courts by McCaslin, until a plea, when the case was up for a hearing the second time, that it belonged to his wife and not himself.

The case pending in the courts for a long time, during which McCaslin passed through a number of interesting experiences.

BEAUTIFUL PICNIC

GROUND

For Picnic Parties, on the Atlanta and West Point Railroad.

Pearl Lake is only thirty-nine miles from Atlanta—one hour's ride—and is situated in a beautiful grove of large oaks, the surrounding lands beautifully covered with grass. The lake of clear spring water covers thirteen acres, has bathhouses and rowboats and is also stocked with game fish. Fishing, boat riding and bathing are all free to the excursionist, thus offering to the pleasure seeker for a day's outing one of the most attractive spots in middle Georgia. These grounds are kept in most beautiful order. A new and large pavilion, 40x50 feet, has been recently erected, thus adding another to the many attractions of this place.

On application to the representatives of the Atlanta and West Point railroad information will be gladly furnished, the grounds shown and pleasure taken in making any arrangements for parties who desire pleasant and convenient picnicking grounds.
